

Approval of Test Houses

The Commission publishes a list of test houses that are approved to test compliance against the Commission's technical standards and equipment requirements.

The table below outlines the specific technical standards and/or requirements that each test house is approved to test compliance against. The full text of all the relevant standards/requirements is available on our website.

The table below also sets out which test houses have full and provisional approval. Test houses with full and provisional approval are equally able to test compliance against the Commission's technical standards and requirements.

Full approval is granted to test houses that have passed the Commission's assessment of integrity and independence and have obtained full accreditation to ISO 17025 which covers the scope of our standards and requirements.

Provisional approval is granted to test houses that have passed the Commission's assessment of integrity and independence, have been approved in other jurisdictions and have experience of testing gambling systems in other jurisdictions. This provisional approval will enable them to test compliance against our standards while they obtain full accreditation to ISO 17025 which covers the scope of our standards and requirements. Once this has been completed, full approval can be granted by the Commission.
